ABOUT AHRI

The Australian Human Resources Institute (AHRI) is the national association for human resource (HR) and people management professionals.

AHRI recognises the changing requirements of Australian business against a background of considerable economic challenge. It also acknowledges the continuing opportunity for the HR profession to actively contribute specialist knowledge for the delivery of people management solutions to business.

AHRI leads the direction and fosters the growth of the HR profession through setting standards, and building the capability and impact of the profession.

AFFILIATE MEMBERSHIP

In the current climate of fast moving economic, political and social change, individuals responsible for people management need to make every effort to stay in touch with developments in the field of HR.

Affiliate membership of AHRI is a grade of membership open to all. Affiliate membership enables individuals with people management and HR responsibilities to access AHRI member services without having to demonstrate professional knowledge or competence or commit to ongoing continuous professional development.

AHRI Affiliate members:

- come from a range of professional backgrounds with diverse responsibilities, including line managers, small business operators, professional service providers and business owners
- represent all industry groups
- have a shared interest in management and development of people

AHRI Affiliate membership is ideal for people who want to keep up-to-date with HR and people management issues and gain access to HR professional networks.

WHAT TO DO NEXT?

Simply complete the Affiliate member application form and return it to AHRI with the relevant membership fee. Alternately, visit www.ahri.com.au to join online and get immediate access to your member benefits.
